

Adrián Muros Alcojor

Dr. Architect. Professor at the Superior Technical School of Architecture of Barcelona (ETSAB), Polytechnical University of Catalonia (UPC), since 1990. He is a Professor in the subjects of the Degree, speciality and Master, in the field of lighting and environmental conditioning. He is a Member of the Degree Project and of the Master's Dissertations. He has been a Professor of the School of Architecture of La Salle from 1999 to 2006 and assistant professor at the Elisava School. He gives courses, seminars and conferences at universities and at national and international institutions.

He is the director of the Lighting Studies Workshop of the UPC-ETSAB, where he carries out research and design work in the field of artificial lighting, for instance: Design of luminary prototypes, Organization of lighting competitions, mounting of exhibitions and performances, Development of luminary patents. He collaborates with several companies in the lighting engineering sector with whom he maintains collaboration agreements University-Company.

He is the author of several books about natural and artificial lighting, and he also has written about the lightings systems in the architecture. Likewise, he has published numerous articles in specialized magazines and he regularly collaborates with Icadela, where he manages a section about the teaching of lighting.

He has his own architecture firm since 1990, having carried out more than 100 architecture projects in several fields such as house building, equipments, Industry, interior design, restoration, urbanism, product design, lighting and facilities. He worked as an architect in the area of projects of the City Council of Barcelona, doing development works, urban furniture design, interior and urban lighting for the 1992 Barcelona Olympic Games. He collaborates with different Architects as a consultant of systems for the architecture and as an expert in efficiency, energy savings, design of environmental architecture and sustainability. He has won several awards in architecture competitions. At present, he is a member of the Spanish Lighting Committee (CEI) and the Association of Experts in facilities of the Official Organization of Catalan Architects (COAC).