Call for Participation

Requirements Engineering for a Sustainable World

The IEEE International Requirements Engineering Conference provides the premier forum for researchers, educators and industrial practitioners to present and discuss the most recent innovations, trends, experiences and concerns in the field of requirements engineering. This year's conference will explore the crucial issue of sustainability of the earth and its natural resources, and the role played by the requirements community in reaching this goal.

Program Highlights

RE'08 provides a healthy balance across research and application, and domain-specific and general-purpose requirements engineering:

- Three keynote talks by Michael Jackson, Jean-Pascal van Ypersele and Helio Piñón
- Research and scientific evaluation papers presenting the latest research results
- Industrial practice and experience papers presenting problems and challenges found in practice, innovations in industrial settings, and success/failure stories
- A comprehensive portfolio of workshops and tutorials held on Monday 8th and Tuesday 9th
- Mini-tutorials, "meet-the-expert" sessions and panels included in the conference program
- Also: posters, research tool demonstrations and commercial tool exhibitions

Venue and Registration

RE'08 will be held at the Barceló Sants Hotel in Barcelona, Catalunya, Spain. Barcelona is located on the Mediterranean Sea, to the northeast of the Spanish coast. Weather in early September is usually sunny and mild.

You may already register at www.re08.org. Early registration is open until August 8.

You may still join our sponsorship & commercial exhibitor programmes, see www.re08.org
